WARNERT RACING CRUSHES THE COMPETITION IN HAYWARD

St. Cloud, Minnesota March 8, 2010 – Warnert Racing riders Tim Tremblay and Justin Broberg inflicted some serious pain on their fellow competitors this weekend at the ISOC National Sno-cross event in Hayward Wisconsin. Both were on top their games as they brought home three wins and a second place finish at the second to last event for the season.

In the Pro classes Tremblay was focused on the top podium spot and his racing reflected it. In Stock class Saturday he launched with a mediocre start in fifth place and began to methodically work his way towards the front. Teammate Emil Ohman had a brief bobble while running in second that allowed Tremblay to slip by and the two racers then locked up to try and run down the leader but ran out of time. For Ohman this marks the fourth weekend with a podium finish as he continues to run stronger each race. Steve Taylor had a strong qualifying run but got knocked off the track at the start and recovered to finish ninth. On Sunday in Pro Open Tremblay raced with a stout purpose and moved from fourth to first in the first lap by picking sweet lines and then running hard all the way to the end for his fourth win of the year.

Justin Broberg came to Hayward with a point to prove after a disqualification at the previous event and did it by taking both Semi-Pro class wins in dominating fashion. Justin has brought himself back into the hunt for a Season Championship in the Semi-Pro Open class, but he'll have to race hard to make it happen. Dylan Martin had a great weekend hitting the podium with a third in Semi-Pro Stock and just missing it with a fourth in Open – his dedication in training and never giving up on the track have him looking good in the points standings with one to go. Darrin Mees showed great speed all weekend, but had a hard time staying attached to his sled as he came off in each final while running near the front.
